BIOGRAPHY OF LCDR EDWARD F. KELLOGG, USN

Lieutenant Commander Kellogg was commissioned from the Officer Candidate School, Newport, R.I. in 1959 after having attended Loras College. During his initial tour of sea duty he served aboard the USS AMMEN (DD-527), USS PARSONS (DD-949) and USS LYNDE B. McCORMICK (DDG-8). In 1963 he was assigned to NROTC instructor duty at the University of Louisville and subsequently served as Chief Staff Officer of Destroyer Squadron Fourteen from 1965 to 1968. Lieutenant Commander Kellogg received his masters degree in political science from the University of Washington in June of 1970 under the Navy post-graduate school program and reported aboard USS FORREST ROYAL (DD-872) as Executive Officer in August of the same year. He relieved Cdr. C. W. Fox Jr. as Commanding Officer of FORREST ROYAL in March of 1971.

Lieutenant Commander Kellogg is married to the former Miss Renate Heinrich of Heilbronn, Germany and they have a daughter, Monica.

BIOGRAPHY OF COMMANDER MUSTAFA TURUNCOGLU

Commander Turuncoglu graduated from the Turkish Naval Academy in 1954. After one year of indoctrinational training, and one year training on board various ships, he spent a third year at operational and tactics school.

After three years of training and schools, Commander Turuncoglu was assigned as communications officer on his first sea assignment. Commander Turuncoglu saw duty on TCG SULTANISAR (D-343), as communicator, on TCG KILICALIPASA (D-350) as anti-submarine warfare officer and also on TCG GELIBOLU (D-346) as communications officer. Commander Turuncoglu completed his sea duty in 1962 and came ashore as a communications and tactics instructor for three years. In addition to his Instructor's title, Commander Turuncoglu was in overall charge of the training and discipline for the Petty Officer candidates.

In 1965 Commander Turuncoglu entered the Turkish Naval War College. Upon graduation two years later, he received his first command, TCG SAPANCA (M-517), a minesweeper. Commander Turuncoglu then spent two years as Executive Officer of the Destroyer TCG PIYALEPASA (D-351).

In 1969 Commander Turuncoglu was rotated ashore to the headquarters of the Commandant, Turkish Fleet. He was officer in charge of operational and tactical training for the Turkish Fleet. It was during this assignment that Commander Turuncoglu was selected to attend the TURKISH JOINT ARMED SERVICE WAR COLLEGE.

Leaving shore duty, Commander Turuncoglu was assigned as Captain of TCG GELIBOLU (D-346), the Destroyer he had once been aboard as communications officer. While in command of TCG GELIBOLU, Commander Turuncoglu was selected as the first Commanding Officer of USS FORREST ROYAL (DD-872) after official turnover. ROYAL will enter service in the Turkish Fleet as TCG ADATEPE (D-353).

Commander Turuncoglu is married and has one boy and one girl. His family, currently reside in Istanbul, Turkey.

HISTORY OF THE USS FORREST ROYAL (DD-872)

The USS FORREST ROYAL, a destroyer of GEARING Class, with a displacement of 2250 tons, was the largest ship of her type to be built by the Bethlehem Steel Corporation of Staten Island, New York. Her keel was laid 8 June 1946. Named after the late Forrest Batton Royal, she was sponsored at her launching by Admiral Royal's daughter.

The first commanding officer of the ROYAL was commander James M. Clute, USN. After fitting out, ROYAL departed New York for her shakedown cruise to Guantanamo Bay, Cuba. She continued to operate in Caribbean and Gulf waters for three years as a rescue destroyer stationed in Penscola, Florida.

In 1950 ROYAL saw action in Korea. She was engaged in both mine-sweeping and shore bombardment. In addition, ROYAL aided in the epic evacuation of United Nation troops from Hungnam. Seven months later she returned to Newport, R.I.

For the next three years, ROYAL conducted routine operations including cruises to Europe, the Mediterranean and various ports in the United States. In 1955 she embarked on a 40,000 mile around the world cruise. Then in September of 1956, ROYAL was deployed to the SIXTH Fleet. Almost seven months and 48,000 miles later, she returned to Newport. In the meantime, she had crossed the equator four times and had operated as a unit of both the SIXTH Fleet and Middle East Force.

When the Lebanon crisis flared, ROYAL was ordered to that area. She arrived in Beirut only to be ordered to another troublesome situation Formosa, where the ship operated in the Straits for several months. She returned home in November of 1958 after completing her second circumnavigation of the globe.

During the winter and following spring, ROYAL served as part of the ready ASW task force in the Atlantic. The summer of 1959 found her sailing as part of Task Force 47 on the historic "Inland Seas" cruise when the United States sent warships into the Great Lakes for the first time since 1812. In March of 1960, ROYAL deployed once more to the Mediterranean with Destroyer Squadron 10.

Following FRAM in 1961 and six weeks of refresher training at Guantanamo Bay, Cuba, ROYAL proceeded to Mayport, Florida, her new home port, where she became part of Destroyer Squadron SIXTEEN. After the Cuban Crisis had calmed, she returned to work for Operational Test and Evaluation Force in Key West, Florida. ROYAL's primary duty there was testing ASROC.

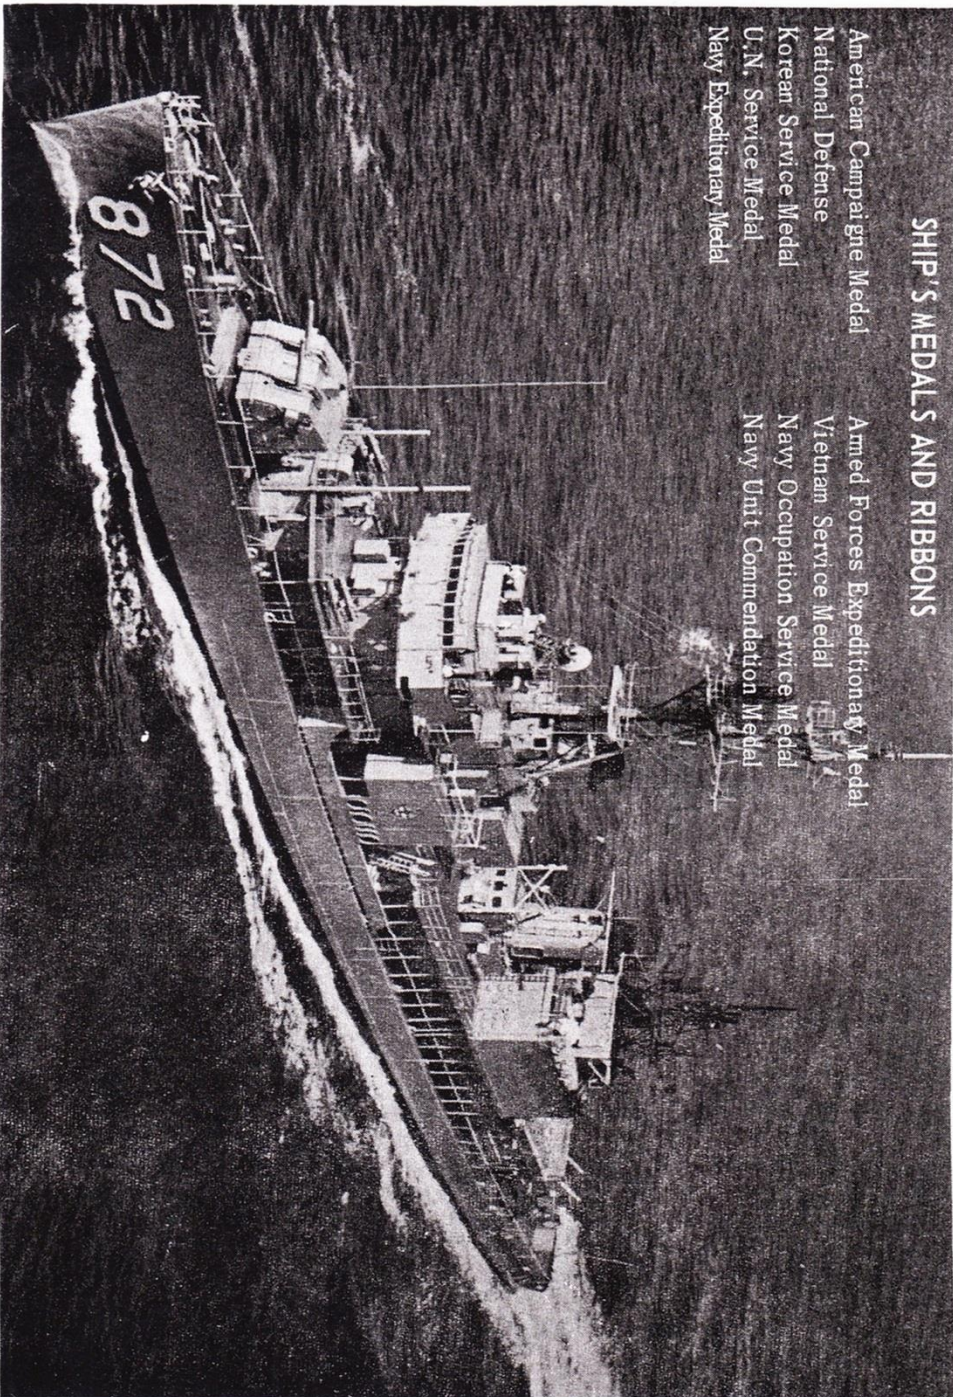

After a brief yard period in 1963, ROYAL deployed to the Mediterranean again. Upon arrival the ship participated in the first firing of ASROC in the Mediterranean, second to launch her missile in a three ship salvo. ROYAL returned home to be fitted out with her DASH system and to operate with the SECOND Fleet in the Atlantic for the next two years. During the time she participated as a unit of the GEMINI II recovery team. In 1967 ROYAL deployed to the Western Pacific. She saw duty off the coast of Vietnam in a gunfire support role and then returned home. After an extended yard period the ship made several short training cruises and then departed for Mid-EAST deployment in November of 1969.

The FORREST ROYAL returned from the Red Sea cruise in the early summer of 1970 and was placed in a cadre status pending a decision on future assignment. It was learned in February of 1971 that the ROYAL was to be decommissioned. The crew then turned their efforts toward preparing her for transfer to the Turkish Navy, where she will continue to serve as TCG ADATEPE (D-353).
